

Kitty Check-Up

PLUSH

1 Take Kitty's Temperature

Get the thermometer ready to take Kitty's temperature by sliding the button on the back all the way until it stops. Then press the thermometer tip against Kitty's mouth. A sad face will tell you she has a fever. A happy face will tell you she's well.

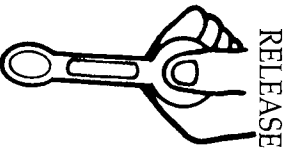

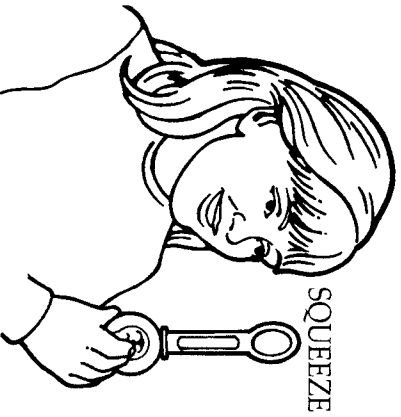

2 Give Kitty the Medicine

You can make Kitty feel all better when you give her pretend medicine. With spoon pointed down, insert it into medicine jar and squeeze bulb slowly to fill. Keeping the bulb squeezed and the spoon pointed down, place tip of spoon to Kitty's mouth and slowly release bulb to empty. Watch all of the pretend medicine "disappear" as Kitty takes it!

After you give Kitty her medicine, check her temperature again. If you see another sad face, then Kitty may need more medicine. And when you see a happy face, you've helped Kitty feel so much better!

SPECIAL HINTS:

- If spoon does not empty, hold it straight up as shown. Then squeeze bulb completely. Continuing to squeeze bulb, point the spoon down and then release the bulb. Spoon should empty.
- You may need to repeat this step to completely empty spoon.

Check Kitty's Heartbeat

If you have a Baby Check-Up™ Doll, you can really listen to Kitty's heart with her stethoscope. Just press the stethoscope to the heart pattern on Kitty's chest and hear her heart beating!

SPECIAL HINTS:

- To locate Kitty's heart, move stethoscope around over heart pattern until you hear her heartbeat.
